Digitalization is becoming popular among Indians. Gradually, people are understanding the needs, advantages and it's impact on development of the nation For the sake of awareness a Nukkad Natak was acted on the topic "digital India".The volunteers explained the advantages of digitalization in day to day life. 'Swachta Abhiyan' was also conducted by the volunteers at the same site. The digital revolution has changed how we interact with our immediate surroundings for daily living over the last decade of the 20th century and the first two decades of the 21st. We cannot live without online shopping, digital payments, messaging, and email. The internet revolution and developments in digitization have reached every part of the nation. We need to be digitally literate to fulfil our basic demands for communication, payment, and shopping.

While India claims to have one of the fastest-growing economies in the world, a recent study by the Digital Empowerment Foundation found that just 30% of our population is basic literate, and that number is double for digital literacy. To give every person access to the internet, the government introduced Digital India in 2015. Although there is no doubt about its potential advantages, there are still difficulties, such as slow infrastructure development, bandwidth availability, personal computer penetration, and scaling ability.

Villagers enjoyed the session and appreciated the effort of NSS volunteers and consented for digital transaction.
